General Information

Description

This course will be built around the student's ability to understand and apply health concepts. The coursework will primarily take place in Google Classroom via various formative and summative assessments. All students will practice ubiquitous learning through the semester, which includes using handheld mobile devices (i.e. cellphones) to maintain a constant connection to educational material.

Expectations and Goals

Students will be expected to arrive on time daily. In order to practice ubiquitous learning, students will be granted access to phone, tablet, and computer use frequently. ANY STUDENT USING MOBILE DEVICES FOR NON-EDUCATIONAL REASONS WILL BE SUBJECT TO CONSEQUENCES. Due dates and point values of assignments and assessments will always be made available in a timely manner. They will also be expected to reach daily cognitive and affective goals as they are presented.

Ubiquitous Learning

Google Classroom

- All assignments will come through the Google Classroom portal.
- Communication between students and Coach Rever will be also be through Google Classroom.

Phone Use

- Students will be permitted ample opportunities to use their phone to promote constant learning.
- Phones must never be used for any activities other than approved educational research.
- Loss of device privileges will result in an increase of homework, as the student will not be able to complete needed classwork.
